the welcome retreat which their umbrage will form in fature days.

All these improvements, which have sprung up beneath the skill and energy of the Board of Public Works, combine to make K street one of the most inviting three or promensive within the District limits. The advance of real retate values along its line has been so rapid as to be scarcely credible. Ground between Fourteenth and histories streets, which under the administration of our old monicipality could have been bought at fairy cents per foot, is now largely in demand at $3.00, and withheld by its owners in a reasonable anterpation of more lovarity advance.

Names. Entering K street at Fourteenth and turning westward, we approach at once a row of modern brown-aton fronts and tasteful bay windows and porches of same material. It has a frontage of over 61th years on K. atreet, and one nundred on Vermout arcuive. It was designed and being erected under the superintendence of John Franier, our enceptrising architect. Mr. Lowry, the wealthy owner of this modern dwelling, is a retired increbant of New York, lately from a three years' tour through Eu

About one hundred feet west of this, and occupying the corner of Fifteenth and K streets, is the new residence of Representative Washburn, aircady under roof and fast approaching completion. This is built of pressed-brick, with bay windows on both streets, and a very high French roof. The hay windows and trimmings are of galvanized iron, finished in imitation of brownstene, of which has prorted by pillars, with

Between the two mansions last described are several displatated oil frames, mostly owned by colorest jeeople. Efforts, both direct and through middle men, have been made by several of our more prominent real estate firms to purchase this property for grationen of wealth, who desire to improve it, but without success, as the owners, suspicious through ignorance, have interpreted the frequent applications for purchase into a scheme to get the advantage of them, and we are informed that they now demand 55 per foot for it. A portion of it was sold to Mr. Lowry, to enable thin to carry out his plans for his large residence, for $2.50 over a year since. This square, with the Washburn and Lowry mansions, fronts out upon the reservation so elegantly improved by Gen. Babcock, known as Parragut aquare, discribed in last week's fix.

Most of the southern portion of this square, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, on K, is occupied by the wail enclosing the spacious grounds connected with the residence of G. W. Higgs, which fronts on I street, and, it is presumed, is not for ease. A few vacant lots remain opposite this, which might be bought at the figures herefolder stated. Advancing one square west, the southern front of which is occupied by the elegant. Government reservation described in our last Saturday's issue, we approach the most extensive, and by all olds the most contit, private improvement now heigh made in the District. This consists of three massive double homes, which, combinel, have a frontage of the entire square, and lock and upon the healtiful reservation opposite. We refer to the settlement, cities are being built of Oble freestone, with galvanied iron trimmings and bay windows. Each house has a front on K street of a freet, while that of Mr. A. R. Shepherd fronts 135 feet on Connection avenue, and inta of Mr. Italiet Kitle hours is a freet on Seventeenth street. These hours as feet on Seventeenth street. They were designed by Mr. Chusa, who, it is presumed, being so largely interested personnels, being so largely interested personally, has spared no pane to make them complete and secure in every particular. The outside walls are twenty inches in thickness, and the entire row is to be heated by steam. A term seed front of some eight feet in height will add additional beauty to the row.

Adjoining these houses, and fronting on Connectient avenue, occupying the space between Mr. Shepherd's present residence, at the cerem Mr. Shepherd's present residence, at the cerem Mr. Shepherd's present residence, at the capture of L street, and his new house, just described, this enterprising gentleman is initiality four modern, present-brick dwellings, with tag-windows, Mansard roofs, and all late style improvements, both in and outside. The high terrace provided for on the K-street front is likewise continued on Connecticut avenue and Seventeenth street, and will have a most temeficial effect in imparting an air of attraction to the entere ow in each of these streets.

Uniting the value of Mr. Shopherd's present residence—the only remaining house on this equare—to that of all the houses described, it is doubtful whether there is within the jurisdiction of the District government a square of ground of the same timensions which will represent a greater money value.

explanation of the working of the law of im-provement; for here modern residences cease to exist, and the street on both sides is occupied by small frame tenements of the most lemporary character.

On the south side of this square two small six-room bricks, two stories high, are being fluished—one by Win. H. Griffin, the other by John Clark, both colored. The latter named gestic-man is already occupying his house, and the for-mer will enter his in a few weeks, as it is fast approaching completion.

From this point weatward to the intersection of K street with Pennsylvania avenne there is little improvement made by private cilizens. At the soutwest corner of Sighteenth and K streets there is a large, old-style brick house, which has for some months been placarded for rent by Geo. S. Parker, corner C and Four-and-a-half streets. We are credibly informed that it has very recently been purchased by Mr. A. R. Shepherd with a view of remodeling and renovat-ing it. If this is so, it may awaken the spirit of Fort Wingate is probably the prettiest place in New Maxico. It is built of next and substantial addied houses, those of the officers two-stories. As settlements are in its neighborhood, but large numbers of Navajo Indians are encamped near it. They are not beiligerently disposed, but are expert thieves, rendering it impossible for parises at the fort to keep cows or other animals inclose under constant and vigitant quard. They send their squaws into our camp to pick out and carry house the few grains of core wasted by
